He was mayor of Palm Springs, California from 1988 to 1992, and the Republican Congress for California's 44th District, was elected during the Republican Revolution and served in 1995 until his death in 1998. The U.S. Copyright Extension Act of 1998, which extended the terms of copyright by 20 years, Named in honor of Bono when he passed by nine months after his death. Mary Bono (Son's last wife) was one of the original patrons of the legislation, commonly known as Sonny Bono Copyright Extension Theme Act.[1] Bono earlyly held in Detroit at Santo Bono (born in Montelepre, Palermo, Italy) and Zena Jean Bonano (née DiMercurio). His mother called him Sono as a term of endearment, which evolved over time in Sonny, [3][4] Sonny was the youngest of three brothers and sisters; he had two sisters, Fran and Betty. [2] The family moved to Inglewood, California when she was seven, and her parents divorced soon afterwards. [3] Bono decided early in their lives to become a part of the music business, and began writing songs as a teenager. [5] Koko Joe, a singer he wrote at the age of 16, was recorded by Don and Dewey in 1958, and later covered by several other artists including the Just Brothers. [6] Bono went to Inglewood High School, but didn't graduate, choosing to drop so he could start pursuing a career as a singer and performer. [2] [7] He worked in a variety of tasks while trying to break into the music business, including water, truck drivers, construction workers, and the Butcher Assistant. [8] Career Entertainment Careers See also: Sonny & amp; Cher Sonny and Cher, 1976 Bono began his music career as a song in Specialty Records, where singing 'Things You Do For Me' was recorded by Sam Cooke, and he went to work for record producer Phil Spector at early 1960s as a promotion man, persecutionist and gofer. One of his singer's earliest efforts, Needle and Pins were co-written with Jack Nitzsche, another member of Spector's production team, Later, in the same decade, he achieved commercial success with his wife Cher Cher in singing duo Sonny and Cher, Bono wrote, arranged and produced a number of hit records including Singles I Got You Babe and The Beat Goes On, although Cher got more attention as a performers. [9] He played a bigger part in Pricey's cellulose recording career, writing and producing Bang Bang and You Better Sit Kids. Bono co-wrote He said yes, covered by the Rolling Stones on their children the 1965 LP December. He hit one like a solo artist, Laugh at Me, was released in 1965 and keen at No. 10 on Billboard's Hot 100. At live concerts, Bono presented the song by saying I'd like to sing a meley of my hits. Her only single as a solo artist, Kind of Revolution, arrived at No. 70 on Billboard Hot 100 later that year. Her solo album, Views Inner, was released in 1967, [10] Sonny Bono in 1966 during a performance Sonny continued to work with Cher in the early and mid-1970s, figures of a popular television variety show, Sonny and Cher Comedy hour, which ran on CBS from 1971 to 1974. From 1976 to 1977, the duo, since divorced, returned to perform together on The Sonny and Pricey Show. Their last appearance together was on The Night With David Letterman on November 13, 1987, where they sang I Got You Babe. [11] [12] What do ye call a bait to smite thee, ... Then you're almost not writing, lyrics come at you, a sort of magic take on, and it's not like working at all. — Sonny Bono on Singing, 1967 Pop Chronicles Interview. [9] In 2011, Sonny Bono was listed in the Michigan rock and rolled up the legendary Hall of Fame. [13] Bono's film and TV career acting included bit parts as a guest performers of such TV series as Fantasy Island, Angel Charlie's, The Love Ship, The Six Million Mans and CHiPs. In the 1975 film Murder Television on Flight 502, he played the role of rock star Jack Marshall. He appeared in 1980s ministers Top Hill. He played the role of longtime Joe Selucci in Airplane II: The Seguel (1982) and appeared in the horror film Troll (1986). He was also entrepreneur of racist Franklin von Tussle in The Films Water John Hairspray (1988). In Male in Black (1997), Bono is one of several oddball celebrities seen on a wall of video screens that monitor extraterstrials living among us. He also appeared as the mayor of Palm Springs (which he actually was at the time) in several episodes of P.S. I Luv U during the 1991-92 season, and on Lois & amp;gt; Clark: The New Adventures of Superman (in Season 1, Episode 9, which jets November 21, 1993), in which she played Mayor Frank Berkkowitz. He also made a minor appearance as himself in the comedy film First Kid (1996). Bono guest-star as himself on Golden Girls Episode Mrs George Devereaux (originally broadcast 17 November 17, 1990), in which she visited with Lyle Waggoner for the Nida (Bea Arthur) affection in a dream sequence. In Blanche's dream, her husband is still alive, and Bono uses his power as mayor of Palm Springs to have Waggoner strongly earthy so he can have nida in mind that Mr. Sophia (Estelle Getty) hoped for Sonny and Nida to get together and actively support Sonny. Political career See also: Laws under The Extension of Law President Ronald Reagan and First Lady Nancy Nanagan are greeted by Sonny Bono and Mary Bono upon their arrival through an Air Force force in Palm Springs, California, December 29, 1988, Bono entered politics after having great frustration with local government bureaucracy in trying to open a restaurant in Palm Springs, California, Bono made a successful bird to become the new mayor of Palm Springs. He served four years ago from 1988 to 1992. [14] It was instrumental in the extinction of the creation of the Palm Springs International Film Festival, which is held annually in Bono's memory. Bono ran for Republican nomination for U.S. Senate in 1992, but the nomination went on to be conservative Bruce Herschensohn, with the election of Democrat Barbara Peugeot. Bono and Herschensohn became close friends after the campaign. Bono was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1994 to represent California's 44th Congressional District. He was one of twelve people who had steaged an extended house bill of copyright. [15] Although the bill never voted on in the Senators, a similar senator's bill was passed after his death, he called the Bonny Bono Copyright Act extension to his memory. He is also known (derisive) as Mickey Protection Act.[16] Republican Congressional Anny Bono (CA-44), in Washington D.C., 1995. It was warming up the restoration of the Salton Sea,[17] complaining to the giant bank for national attention. In 1998, then Speaker of the Chamber of Gingrich made a public appearance and speech at the shore of the check on Behalf of Bono. In the books say Newt is close, David Maraniss and Michael Weisskopf credit Bono and being the first person to recognize Gingrich's public relations problem in 1995. Drawing on his long experience as a celebrity producer and entertainment producer. Bono (according to Maraniss and Weisskopf) recognized that Gingrich's status has changed from politicians to celebrity. I used to be a bigger celebrity. But let me tell you, you have not been busy right. That is not political news coverage. That's the status of celebrities. You need to understand what you're doing. You need to understand the attitude of the media towards celebrities. Bono remains the only member of Congress to have to score a pop-one-one pop on Billboard Hot 100 American Charts. [18] Personal life Marriage Bono married his first wife, Donna Rankin, on November 3, 1954. Their daughter Christine (Christy) was born June 24, 1958. They divorced in 1962. In 1964, Bono married singer and actress Cher. They had a child, Chaz Bono, born March 4, 1969, and divorced in 1974. [7] Bono married actress-model Susie Coelho on New Year's Eve in 1981; [19] They divorced in 1984. [20] He mary Whitaker in 1986 and had two children, son of Chesare Elan in 1988 and daughter of China in 1991. [7] Godparent Bono called an apparent unto Anthony Kiedis, who became a music artist with his strips, Red Hot Peppers. Sonny was a pal of Kiedis's father, Blackie Dammett, and often took the boy to tour over the weekend. [21] [22] Salton Sea Bono was a champion of the Salton Sea in Southeast California, where a park was named in his honor. The 2005 film Calamities documented with Pleasures on the Salton Sea [23] (narrator by John Water) features bono and documented the inhabitants' lives of Bombay Beach, Niland and Salton City, as well as the ecological issues associated with the sea. His religion became interested in syanology and taking syanology courses partly because of the influence of Mimi Rogers, but stated that he was a Roman Catholic on all official documentation, campaign materials and websites. [24] His wife Mary took the course of Sianology as well. [25] [26] However, after his death, Mary Bono stated that Sonny tried to break away [from the Church of Syntheology] at one point, and made it very difficult for her. The church in Scientology said there was no unusual exit from Bono.
